DETAILED ACTION

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 8/9/2007 has been entered.

Original Rejection

Claims 1, 3, 5-10, 14-22 and 24-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over either of Razavi I or II as cited in and for the reasons of record given in paragraph 4 of the Office action dated 11/14/2006.

Claims 1, 3, 5-10, 14-22 and 24-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Uwai as cited in and for the reasons of record given in paragraph 5 of the Office action dated 11/14/2006.

Response to Arguments

All of applicant's arguments amount to the difference in temperature between the references and the instant invention. These arguments are not persuasive because the temperature is considered to be a result effective variable. With respect to result effective variables MPEP 2144.05 [R-5] states:

A. Optimization Within Prior Art Conditions or Through Routine Experimentation

Generally, differences in concentration or temperature will not support the patentability of subject matter encompassed by the prior art unless there is evidence indicating such concentration or temperature is critical. “[W]here the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, it is not inventive to discover the optimum or workable ranges by routine experimentation.” In re Aller, 220 F.2d 454, 456, 105 USPQ 233, 235 (CCPA 1955) (Claimed process which was performed at a temperature between 40°C and 80°C and an acid concentration between 25% and 70% was held to be prima facie obvious over a reference process which differed from the claims only in that the reference process was performed at a temperature of 100°C and an acid concentration of 10%.); see also Peterson, 315 F.3d at 1330, 65 USPQ2d at 1382 (“The normal desire of scientists or artisans to improve upon what is already generally known provides the motivation to determine where in a disclosed set of percentage ranges is the optimum combination of percentages.”); In re Hoeschele, 406 F.2d 1403, 160 USPQ 809 (CCPA 1969) (Claimed elastomeric polyurethanes which fell within the broad scope of the references were held to be unpatentable thereover because, among other reasons, there was no evidence of the criticality of the claimed ranges of molecular weight or molar proportions.). For more recent cases applying this principle, see Merck & Co. Inc. v. Biocraft Laboratories Inc., 874 F.2d 804, 10 USPQ2d 1843 (Fed. Cir.), cert. denied, 493 U.S. 975 (1989); In re Kulling, 897 F.2d 1147, 14 USPQ2d 1056 (Fed. Cir. 1990); and In re Geisler, 116 F.3d 1465, 43 USPQ2d 1362 (Fed. Cir. 1997).

Applicants then discuss the recent supreme court decision “KSR International Co. v. Teleflex Inc.” as further evidence of their novelty, however, examiner would like to point out that the KSR v. Teleflex decision actually makes examiner rejection even stronger, although, it is not needed for the rejection. Furthermore, even if the results of using a higher temperature are superior to results when a lower temperature is used, this is still considered a result effective variable, which, does not in any way add to the patentability of the instant claims.
